

Abstract

The invention relates to methods for the fermentative production of sulfur-containing fine 5 chemicals, in particular L-methionine, by using bacteria which express a nucleotide sequence coding for a methionine synthase (metA) gene.